If the business has other loans or credit extensions from U.S. Eagle Federal Credit Union, or takes out other loans or credit extensions with U.S. Eagle in the future, collateral securing those loans or credit extensions will also secure the obligations under this agreement. However, unless expressly agreed otherwise, household goods and dwellings will not secure the obligations under this agreement even if U.S. Eagle has, or later acquires, a security interest in household goods or a mortgage on a dwelling. If a written agreement has been executed granting a security interest in any share accounts or other funds held by U.S. Eagle to secure the obligations under this credit card plan, such accounts and/or funds are an additional security for the obligations to U.S. Eagle arising from the use of the Card. The Signers agree to pay all costs incurred by U.S. Eagle in collecting the indebtedness or in enforcing this agreement, including reasonable attorney's fees and costs, expenses and attorney's fees incurred in appellate, bankruptcy and post-judgment proceedings, except to the extent such costs, fees or expenses are prohibited by law.

How We Will Calculate Your Balance: We use the "Average Daily Balance (including new purchases)" method.

Billing Rights: Information on your rights to dispute transactions and how to exercise those rights is provided in your Terms and Conditions. Method of computing finance charge: Average Daily Balance (including new purchases).

Finance charges are calculated by applying the periodic rate to the Average Daily Balance of the Account, including current transactions. The Average Daily Balance is arrived at by taking the beginning balance of the Account each day, adding any new cash advances, balance transfers, purchases or debits, and subtracting any payments or credits and unpaid Finance Charges, this gives us the daily balance. The daily balances for the billing cycle are then added together and divided by the number of days in the billing cycle; the result is the Average Daily Balance.
